STANFORD, KY., TUESDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1891.

NO. 86

Newsy Letter From Harrodsburg.

—Born to the wife of Mr. Tullius Witherspoon, nee Miss Mary C. Davis, a girl. C. is the youngest grandchild in town.

—Mrs. Patsy McVee, aged 87, died at her home on Lexington street, Saturday morning, of pneumonia. In the last six months six of the oldest ladies in town have died.—Mrs. Patsy Smiley, aged 93, Mrs. Maud Harris, 82, Mrs. Sarah Davis, 78, Mrs. Susan Walker, 82, Miss America Pulliam, 81, and Mrs. McVee, 87.

—On Thursday, about midnight, fire broke out in the store room of D. L. Moore, occupied by J. W. Robinson, known as the Mammoth Clothing House, and the building and entire contents were consumed. The stock was valued at about $25,000. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed that it was caused by fire being left in the stove. The building was insured for $50,000 and the stock for $11,000 in four or five different companies. The little soda fountain engine was called out, but did no good, as usual, except to keep the fire from spreading.

—Miss Dixie Edmon, of this place, who has been living in Pineville for some time, will be married to Mr. Tucker, a Chicago capitalist, who has large interests at Pineville, where they met each other, at the Methodist church here, at high noon, Tuesday, 29th. There will be ten bridesmaids. All will be dressed in white with red gloves, slippers, and flowers except the maid of honor, Miss Minnie Bohm, who will be dressed entirely in red. After the ceremony the bridal party will have lunch at Mrs. W. P. Smith's, when the newly married couple will leave for Chicago, their future home. Miss Edmon is one of the most popular young ladies of this place, very handsome and highly educated and Mr. Tucker is to be congratulated on his good fortune in securing such a worthy bride.

—The boys and negroes had a lively time here Christmas night. Several were shot with pistols, a number were knocked in the head with rocks and nearly every young man in town bears evidence in the shape of a bruise of having been shot with Roman candles. Harrodsburg is undoubtedly the toughest town in the State for its size. The negroes here are meaner, tougher and more thieving than anywhere else in the State and unless they are put down from the high horse they are now riding, there will be no living in the town in a few years. At any time day or night at least 500 male negroes can be seen standing on the street corners or loitering in store doors and windows, with no visible means of support and it is a well-known fact that most, if not all of them, live by stealing. Something ought to be done.

—Some time ago Dr. J. H. Dedman heard some one growling around his premises and securing a pistol he went out to investigate and found a negro man deliberately chopping up and carrying off some lumber he had stacked upon a vacant lot. He called to him and inquired what he was doing and receiving a very rough answer tried on him. Next morning a trail of blood was found leading from the place, but he was unable to find out who it was he had shot until a few days ago, when John Allen, one of the elite of the colored population, sent for a doctor and said he had a very bad case of rheumatism. He refused to be examined, however, and not until an officer was informed and compelled him would he submit to an examination. The physician found that the ball had entered his hip and ranged upward and he was in a very precarious condition. The negroes say he was crazy, if he was stealing, but the white population are disposed to think he has been a thief all his life and was caught for the first time just by being shot.

Carl Brehm's "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" company scored a big success in their presentation of the old play at the Opera House on Saturday evening. The good words given in the towns in which they had appeared before reaching here, the fine appearance and the excellent music of their handsomely uniformed brass band and the reputation of Mr. Brehm as a manager, combined to fill the house. The large audience was not disappointed, as the performance was first class, with not a poor character in the cast. The music of the large orchestra was also an enjoyable feature. Should the company fill a return date here, a crowded house is assured.—The Courier, Conneautville, Pa.

At Walton's Opera House, Jan. 1.

—The Register says that 20 shares of the Second National Bank of Richmond sold at $108.50 to $200.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

LANCASTER, Dec. 28, 12 M.—Special.—Judge Robinson overruled the application for vote on local option.

THIS LANCASHIRE

—On Christmas eve, sometimes during the night, the lock on the front door of the National Bank was broken off and the door somewhat defaced. Nothing was missed from the inside and the supposition is that some "fishy" oyster" did it to have a little fun. Such fun don't pay.

—The remains of Miss Patsy Baker, daughter of Abner Baker, who died in this county many years ago, were brought to Lancaster on Sunday evening and interred in the Cemetery Monday morning. She had been on a visit to relatives in Florida for her health but died there soon after her arrival. She was a member of the Presbyterian church and appropriate religious services were held at the grave by Rev. J. R. Terry.

—The New York Press, the leading newspaper of that city, says that it is in a position to announce that there is not now and that there never has been one moment of antagonism between the president and the secretary of state. That the trend of events now seems to indicate that the demand is for Mr. Blaine, and that he will have the cord support of the president.

—Walker Lewis, of Kirtlandville, was here a few days last week. T. K. Higgins has returned to Ohio. Richard Wade Bush of St. Louis, and Clyde Her- ing of Louisville spent Christmas with the Louis folks. John Maris came up to spend a few days with his mother and the home folks. John has been clerking in one of the leading hotels of Knoxville for the past two years and we are glad to say that he has been enjoying the best of health and has a good position. —Thomson Anderson, of Broadhead, was here last week. R. Graham Frank, of the Bible College at Lexington, came home for Christmas turkey. He will return after the holidays.

—The Christmas eve entertainment at the Presbyterian church was a decided success. Mrs. R. A. Burns presided at the organ and the exercises, under the supervision of Mrs. Thomas Wherritt, Misses Lizzie Walker and Carrie Woods, assisted by Miss Eliza Lusk and Rev. J. R. Terry, the pastor, were well rendered and highly entertaining. The recitations of Misses Abie Young, Nellie Royston, Ora Ray, Margaret Mason, Mary Landrum, Laura Doty and C. W. Young, were excellent, as was the duet of Mattie Walker and Bertha Burnside. Mr. Louis Walker made a splendid Santa Claus and numerous gifts were distributed under his supervision.

—Mr. George Vanderhoff, of New York, has purchased property in the mountain regions near Asheville, N. C., and is erecting a house of a peculiar kind, the total cost of the building and ground being three or four millions of dollars. The basement walls of the house are from 12 to 15 feet thick, and it is thought that his reason for this extraordinary precaution is the belief that the anarchists and socialists will at no distant period make a raid upon the millionaire, and these basement walls might serve him as a fortress. He is able to employ a company, or even a regiment, to protect his castle, and to stock it with sufficient provisions to stand a siege of an indefinite period. He has not announced when he will betake himself to his fortification.

—The elegant masked entertainment given by Miss Maye Hughes on Christmas eve was well attended and the guests were delighted with their reception. The various characters were represented as follows: Miss Nell Marrs, Snow-flake, Pattie Bonzay, Snow-flake; Bessie Marksbury, Queen of Spades; Mamie Curry, bride, Maggie Jennings, Snow; Eliza Lusk, Night, Carrie Curry, Night; Annie Hale, Red Riding Hood; Clara Lackey, Mother Hubbard; Ada Farra, Maud Muller; Sallie Elkin, Lap-lander; Mattie Elkin, Girl of the Period; Annie Royston, Mexican Senorita; Ad- die Burnside, Cypess; Kate Landrum, Highland Mary; Ollie Marrs, Sandlapper; Ellen Owsley, Hunting Girl; Allie Anderson, Polly; Bettie Anderson, Red Bird; Nell Johnston, Sun; Mamie Stormes, Queen; Maye Hughes, Grecian Lady; Sara Marrs, Joan of Arc; Sue Her- ring, Fisher Maiden; Jennie Burnside, Fairy; Bessie Burnside, Flower Girl; Lottie Borden, Goddess of Liberty; Car- rie Woods, Tamborine Girl; Lilla Batson, Musician; Bessie Bush, Grand-ma; Mae Ware, Mother Goose; Altie Marksbury, Black Diamond; Letta Brown, Myrtle; Kate Walden, Butterfly; Maria Cook, Rainbow; Bessie Wherritt, Greek Maid; Florence Anderson, Indian Girl; John Kerby, Crazy Woman; Ernest Brown, Japanese Girl; Kirt Kerby, Captain; Hugh Grant, Indian Chief; Mort Roth- well, George Washington; Eph Brown, Private; Howard Marrs, Colonel; Sam Harris, Lieutenant; John Anderson, Duke; John Doty, Duke of Wellington; Letcher Owsley, Henry VIII; Claude Wherritt, Page; Homer Batson, Little Lord Fauntleroy; Charlie Walker, Milk Maid; Louis Walker, Cow-boy; Bert

Spencer, Scottish Chief; Will Dunlap, Baron; Eliza Robinson, Country Girl; Mr. Owens, Page; Albert Severance, Romeo; Reed Jennings, Fashionable Coon; Eda Hughes, Souvenir Spoon; Ashbrook Frank, Bashful Man; John Stormes, Uncle Sam; Charley Anderson, Devil; John Farra, Duke of Buckingham; Wade Bush, Modern Man; El- lington, Priest; Bob West, Othello; Mr. Nixson, English Duke; Jesse Sweeney, Sailor Boy; John Law, Kneechuman; Da- e Walker, Santa Claus.

THEY ARE THE FAD NOW.

The Misses Wedding Very Popular in New York Society.

Wealthy Americans, especially wealthy New Yorkers, have of late years devoted a good deal of attention to parlor entertainments. In this they have followed the lead of London society and there has come into being a class of amusement caterers whose province has wholly in the line of catering to the demand for parlor entertainments on both sides of the water. To this class belong Marshall P. Wilder and Mrs. Sapp, the beautiful whistler. The latest success in this line in New York are the Misses Wedding. English girls who have already won a place in London.

This custom came into vogue some eight or ten years ago, and no less a person than Henry T. Hunt, now Mrs. Henry Staudy, set the fashion. At that time there was a family of three little girls, ranging from about seven to ten years of age, an remarkable for their grace and beauty. They were friends of Miss Tennant, but poor, and it was she who suggested to them to give a little entertainment in her parlor, and so it was that the new fashion of Weddings was born. Lord Londonderry, Oscar Wilde, Ruskin and other notable lights of London were present. At- tending the eldest of the children, re- cited Shelley's "Ode to the Skylark." Her quiet but numerous captivated the audience, and when the other two girls, Peggy and Rosalind, had passed their small parts, their father in the drawing room of the London's great people was as- sured.

Even the Princess of Wales took a fancy to the young ladies—the eldest was now sixteen—and they visited her at Sandringham, where they played scenes from Shakespeare before the royal pair. One of the younger children, now a de- cided hit when the Prince of Wales asked her age and she informed his royal highness that it was impetuous to ask a young lady such a question. A royal flush preceded a hearty laugh, in which every one joined. The princess has always been kind to her young friends, and always greets them when riding in the park with a cordial bow. Of course, after royalty had smiled on the Misses Wedding, their position before society was forever established, and if anything could have added to their fame it came shortly after when Sir John Cowell, master of the queen's household, called them to Osborne to perform before her majesty the queen.

ROSE, LUCY, and PEGGY.

About this time a younger sister—Lucy—aged seven, made her debut at the lord mayor's. Within two weeks Lucy Wedding was known as the prettiest child in England, and a firm of London photographers were accumulating a fortune through the sale of her picture. A story is told that when Mrs. Burnett was dramatizing "Fauntleroy" she strolled into the photographer's shop and saw the child's picture on the wall. "That is the child I want for 'Fauntleroy,'" she said, but she was informed that the child belonged to a private family. Some time after this, however, while the play was running, another child was needed, and the managers made Lucy an offer, and she called on Mrs. Burnett to see if she was satisfactory. Mrs. Burnett was standing in her parlor talking to Wilson Barrett when the child entered. "My ideal!" she exclaimed. "Child, you are the one I wanted first." And Lucy played "Fauntleroy" 500 times before Mrs. Burnett wrote "Nixey" for her, and lost nearly $2,000 in four weeks of matinees. People went to see Lucy pour out tea in the play, but the play was watched and failed to draw as well as the tea.

—Dr. F. E. Ross was given seven years at Louisville for bigamy.

—The locomotive of an express train on the N. Y. Central exploded after crashing into a sleeper, killing 11 persons and wounding many others. The flagman had stepped aside to take a drink.

—A railroad authority says that during the year new tracks have been laid in 43 States and Territories, on 219 lines and branches of 4,168 miles. This increases the system in the United States to 171,000 miles.

TRAVELS OF A STAR.

A French Astronomer Makes Remark- able Observations by the Naked Eye.

A communication from M. Camille Flammarion, the French astronomer, in the New York Herald mentions his dis- covery at Juvisy observatory of the movement of a star by the naked eye. This is the first time in the history of astronomy, he says, that the displace- ment of a star has been settled without instrument aid.

The star to which he refers shines be- neath the brilliant star "Chister" in the constellation of the Virgin. It is num- bered sixty-one and is of the fifth mag- nitude. Hipparchus described it two thousand years ago as a double star. It was then optically double, only not physically connected with another star. But it is no longer double even in appearance. It was in the attempt to ascertain the stellar parallax by the study of double stars that the elder Herschel found evidence of the great law that the dominion of gravitation extends beyond the limits of the solar system to the most remote regions of space.

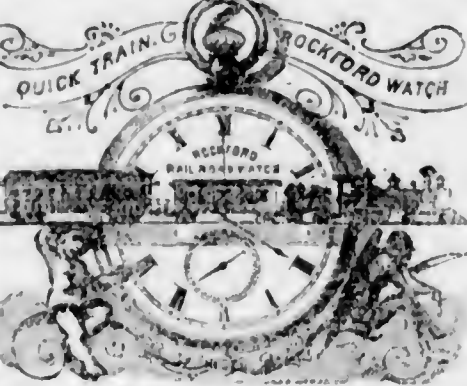

Star atlases constructed by M. Flam- marion and others show that not infre- quently many stars in the same region of the heavens travel in company, or exhibit, as one says, a "gregarious ten- dency." It is not often, therefore, that any change in the relative positions of stars can be detected. But when the star is in line of sight observations with the spectroscopic make it possible to de- termine its rate of approach or recession. More than twenty years ago Huggins found by this means that Arcturus was approaching us at a speed of sixty miles a second, while Sirius was increas- ing his distance by nearly a third as much per second.

Star sixty-one in the constellation of the Virgin was once near star sixty- three, forming with it, apparently, a double star. Now it is separated, says M. Flammarion, "by a distance exceed- ing by far that of the full moon, and it is flying with a rapid course to the southwest and preparing itself to aban- don the Virgin, his arm and its 'cluster,' to go and lose itself in the folds of Hydra, which envelop themselves in the south."

A Dangerous Crisis.

A gentleman who was last winter in the south relates that upon one occa- sion he went with some friends to a col- ored service, says the Boston Courier. At the close of the sermon a contribu- tion was taken up, and as the plate was passed to him he dropped into it a silver half dollar, meaning this to do for the whole party. The colored deacon who was passing the plate regarded it an in- stant with a stupefied air, and then said in a hoarse whisper: "I like out that ar silver." "Isn't it enough?" the gentle- man asked, much amused. "Lo! bless yee," responded the deacon, "we don't put silver into this yer plate. Dat old idger preacher get so puffed up dat we coudn't let wld him, no way." The argument was too con- vincing to be resisted, especially as by this time the whole congregation was watching the ecstacy between the deacon and the stranger, and the gentle- man hastily exchanged a handful of pennies for the silver piece. The deacon passed on smiling, with the air of a man who had skillfully brought the church bark past a dangerous rapid.

—Christmas day was celebrated in Harrodsburg as follows: Lee Bennett was shot in the arm by Abe Bridges. A railroad man was shot by unknown parties. George Mosby was shot in the abdomen by Abe Curd and cannot recover.

I notice no change in the capital since I was here last, nor have any of the large public buildings moved their sites. Washington's monument is also standing where it was and in fact I see little or no change since I, in my feeble way, attempted to write up the place some four years ago. E. C. W.

A COTTAGE on Hustonville street and two rooms in my residence for rent. J. R. Alford.

Big line of sample shoes just received. Call and get the best bargain you ever secured. B. F. Jones, Sr.

DAY BOARDERS WANTED, and one furnished room with board, at Mrs. Kate Duddar's, on Lancaster street.

LOST.—A black cashmere shawl between Mr. R. C. Warren's and the Presbyterian church, Friday night. Mrs. Stephen Birch.

A cold snap succeeded a warm Christmas day and Sunday and yesterday were bright and crisp. "Winter, fair" is the prediction for today.

The Lancaster concert to-night, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" Friday night, and "Uncle Josh Sprucey," Saturday night, ought to give our people enough amusement for the week.

INCENDIARIES are again at work in Danville. Another attempt to burn business houses was made Christmas night, but the blaze was discovered in time to prevent a conflagration.

Those indebted to me will confer a great favor by calling and settling without having to be dunned. I need the money to carry on my business and must have it by Jan. 1, or sooner. H. C. Ruple.

A fine brass band and orchestra go with "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" and furnish excellent music. At 2 o'clock Friday the band will give a street parade worth seeing. Come and take it in, along with the show at night.

THIS has been the quietest Christmas we ever saw in Stanford. There has been no disturbance worth mentioning and so far we have seen no drunken men. This is an enviable record, which it is hoped we will always maintain.

CONCERT.—The Lancaster Record says of Prof. Koester's concert, to be given at Walton's Opera House to-night: The programme will consist of several overtures by the well-trained orchestra and vocal, violin and piano solos by the professor himself, H. W. Batson, Misses Nellie Johnston, Lulu Batson and Maye Hughes, together with a recitation by Miss Ollie Maurs.

MISS A. D. REID writes from Richmond: "I wish you would please say for me through your paper that I am ever grateful to the good people of Stanford and those others of the county who took so much interest in my work while I was there, for their help, and I am especially grateful to you and the young ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted me."

WE have recently bought a complete stock of groceries, hardware, queensware, woodenware, etc., and come before the public with every article new and fresh from the cities, and as we have no old stock to carry, we will endeavor to make prices that will be to the interest of everybody to call on us. With our past experience in the business we think we know what the trade requires. Call on us, next door to post-office. Will be ready for business Dec. 31st. McKinney Bros.

THE Christian church was filled Sunday to hear the farewell sermon of Rev. John Bell Watson, and the audience was amply repaid by an eloquent, touching and earnest sermon from Phillips, Jan. 1st. He exhorted the church to unity and brotherly love and complemented it for having so fully put aside the differences and disagreements that once divided it and from wielding little or no influence to have become the most influential church in the section. In closing he referred to the fact that seven years ago he had come among us, an inexperienced youth, just from college, that the members had taken him up and seeing that he was determined to succeed, both as a preacher and pastor, had stood by him till his pastorate had lasted longer than any other in his church of 150 years, save that of Bro. Darnie, of Frankfort, and Sweeney, of Paris. The unpopularity that existed between some of the brethren then had disappeared and the church now was a thoroughly united one with a very large membership, a live prayer meeting and an excellent Sunday-school, the latter he had never failed to attend, except the Sunday after his marriage, when he thought he ought to have been excused. During the first year of his pastorate the membership increased 96 and during the seven years 200 or more. It was asked frequently why he wanted to leave a church doing so well. His answer was, first because he wished to do so while the flag was up and while unity and brotherly love prevailed, and second because he wished to teach a few years and at the same time devote his spare hours to a further preparation for his life work. The happiest moments of his life had been spent around the hearthstones of the members and the recollections of them would always occupy the brightest place in his heart. He then exhorted the brethren to meet and encourage Bro. Ellis, the incoming pastor as they had him, and bade the congregation a heartfelt, loving and tender farewell. There were many tearful eyes as he said these words and many deep regrets that so pleasant and profitable church intercourse had ended.

A GREAT MUSICAL TREAT.—The concert to be given this Tuesday evening at the Opera House, by Prof. Raphael Koester will be enjoyed by old and young people alike. The musical bill of fare is most excellent and of great variety. Let everybody attend and enjoy the sweet music. General admission 25c, reserved seats 35c at McRoberts drug store.

THEY say bugalls has too much appreciation of the fitness of things to want the appointment of Senator from Kansas after his defeat by the representatives of the people, but that's too iridescent to even dream on. He'll not only take it, but is praying for the lightning to strike him. The eye of the governor though, is said to be fixed on Ben Simpson, a stalwart republican, to whom he owes his election as the chief executive.

THE Danville reporter for the daily papers is an enterprising youth, at least he seems to be out for the stuff. He got an item a week old about the killing of young Paul at Harrison, Tenn., from this paper, and telegraphed it to the Courier Journal Sunday, and a few days ago worked the Enquirer with one more than a year old about Harvey McAninch, of Casey, paying a couple of slunks $400 for an alleged gold brick, which turned out to be the poorest kind of brass.

NOTWITHSTANDING the ordinance prohibiting the sale and the shooting of fire crackers and other explosives, there was nearly a continual volley all night Thursday. There were no arrests and people who own property, which was seriously endangered by the reckless use of the works, are asking if we really have right police protection or not? We are for giving the boys one night in the year, but after the counsel had ordered otherwise it should have been seen that the order was obeyed if it took every man in town to enforce it.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—W. B. McKinney, 21, and Mattie Susan Aker, 16, were married Sunday.

—Frank Crabtree and Sammie Wren celebrated Christmas by getting married.

—George Yeach, of Danville, and Miss Mattie Ferrill, of Gaffard, were married in Harrodsburg.

—Thomas W. Haley, 21, and Miss Nellie Woods, 16, eloped from Somerset to Tennessee and were married.

—Mr. George Lawson, of this county, and Miss Jennie Moore, of Gaffard, were married in Danville last week.

—Miss Bessie Broadbent, of Madison, who used to go to the college here, was married this week to Mr. J. T. Embury.

—Miss Rubele Bedford, a very lovely young lady of Frankfort, who has visited here, will become the bride Jan. 6, of John A. Sturge, of Louisville.

—Washington seems to be the mecca for bridal parties and this is an exceedingly popular season of the year for them. This morning in the East Room of the White House seven couples were counted, and there was no mistaking them either. —Cor. Lon. Times, 26th. Were Ed and Belle among them?

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—The Central Presbyterian church at Shelbyville burned Saturday. The fire caught from the furnaces. It cost $25,000 and was insured for $10,000.

—Rev. Ben Helm desires to return his thanks through the LEXINGTON JOURNAL to the friends who extended to him their Christmas greetings in so substantial a form.

—Col. Duncan writes Mrs. W. G. Welch that Bro. Barnes is about to sail for America and will hold a meeting here on his return if sufficient encouragement is offered.

—Rev. W. E. Arnold was too sick to preach Sunday, but it is hoped that he will be well by next Sunday, when D. V. he will commence a protracted meeting at the Methodist church, during which Pr. E. S. Fogg will assist in the music with the cornet.

—An Ohio evangelist named Hawkins, who had been preaching that the world would come to an end Christmas day and had gotten all his congregation to the mourners' bench, committed suicide Christmas eve, leaving a note saying that he had gone to prepare for their coming.

—Lovenan & Co's big dry goods store and other business houses burned at Chattanooga. Loss $650,000, insurance $400,000.

—A business block at Hutchins, Kas., burned, entailing a loss of $10,000.

Beginning with the New Year, it is customary to form new resolutions and as far as possible profit by experience of the past. The general credit system having been universally condemned by both debtor and creditor as a curse to our country, one of our young grocery merchants has concluded that it will be wise and profitable to both himself and his customers to steer clear of this reef that has made shipwreck of so many in the past and at the same time offer such inducements to his customers that they can not afford to buy their groceries elsewhere. For example he will sell you
